

The Willington Conservation Commission presents:

Once Upon a Glacier; the Park's "Early" Years

October 18th (Sat.) 10:00 am – noon

(Rain date Sunday, October 19th)

Bring a lawn chair or blanket and help celebrate our annual Park Day in the Fenton Ruby Park and Drobney Wildlife Sanctuary. The Willington Conservation Commission will start with a presentation its annual "Raymond K. Daley

Environmental Action Award" at 10:00 am. This award is given to an individual or organization in our area who has contributed to providing long-lasting benefits to the environment which can be observed and appreciated by a significant number of Willington citizens.

Following the presentation, Dr. Brian Jones, Assistant Professor of Archaeology at UMass, and Daniel Forrest, Senior Archeologist at Archaeological and Historical Services, Inc. will lead a fascinating informational walk on the formative years of the Fenton Ruby Park. The Park's terrain, plants and wildlife were largely set by glacial events, and Brian and Dan will share their archeologist's observations on the many signs of glacial activity in the Park.

Wear appropriate clothing for a cool fall morning walk. Children of all ages are welcome to this free event, sponsored by the Willington Conservation Commission.

Please call Chris at 429-8384 for more info on this free event.

Rain date is the following Sunday, October 19th from 10:00 am – noon.
